versa 20/22/24 natural latex

Of all the foams available on the market, natural latex has been demonstrated to have the highest levels of resilience and elasticity. This creates an unparalleled sense of comfort, which is attracting a growing number of fans all over Europe. The high demand for this product is boosted by the huge trend for natural fabrics and materials.

Structure of the mattress core – unique flexibility

Each mattress core is cast as a mono-core made from natural rubber into a tool and then solidified. The convenient recesses included in the tool are used to create smoother zones, along with ventilation channels (air ducts) for improved ventilation. There are three different core heights available: 16, 18 and 20cm. You can choose your favourite from your specialist retailer. To ensure that the balance between support and relief is perfectly adjusted to your body weight and your preferred sleeping position, the mattress cores of the versa 20 model are available in two levels of firmness: soft and firm. The versa 22 and 24 models are even available in three firmness levels: soft, medium and firm. Your retailer's specialist consultant can advise you on which design best suits your needs.

Origin and quality

We source all fabrics and materials used in our products from manufacturers based in Switzerland and Central Europe. We can guarantee high-quality workmanship through our long-term collaboration with our specialised partner companies. The manufacture of our products at our historical site in Flueh, Switzerland, ensures that the Swissflex® brand products feature the highest level of Swiss quality.

Natural latex

For the elaborate manufacturing process of the Swissflex® natural latex core, we exclusively use natural raw latex made from renewable materials. Natural latex is recyclable and has an antiseptic effect which keeps bacteria and dust mites away. In addition, it has an unparalleled pressure-relieving and heat-insulating effect, while its open-pored surface is highly durable and CFC-free. This guarantees extraordinary comfort: natural latex yields even to the slightest pressure, providing support where needed without being too soft. Plus, your movements during the night ensure permanent, hygienic ventilation.

Fabric quality

Swissflex textiles consist of natural fibre, woven or stitched, and have high fabric grammage, to ensure a high level of durability and an exceptionally luxurious feel.

Prime-quality merino wool

Swissflex is one of the few European manufacturers to use this premium material in the mattress production process – obviously at the highest quality level. Made from high-quality wool obtained from merino sheep, merino yarn is even finer, more flexible and more voluminous than regular sheep wool. What makes it special is its excellent heat and moisture regulation and fluffiness for a sense of comfort and wellbeing during cold and warm nights. It is also very easily washable – making it really one in a million.
